

Read the Bible at University

A Two-Year
Lectionary To Read
Through The Whole
Bible

Reading the whole Bible at Uni

This lectionary is designed to enable a reader to read the whole of the Bible over a two year period, reading each day of the week but only during the weeks of the academic term at university. It has been designed this way so that the readings can be part of a regular Bible reading and prayer time at the university I minister on, Flinders University. I have designed this lectionary very much from my own personal experience of reading the Bible, and hope that the things that I have found helpful in overcoming some difficulties in reading the Bible through may be helpful to you.

Each day there are four “areas” for the readings – Old Testament, Proverbs, Psalms and New Testament. In this lectionary the psalms are read through twice, whilst each other part is read through once.

The Old Testament readings are arranged to reflect the Hebrew divisions of the Old Testament, rather than the English. So they fall into Torah (Gen – Deut), Former and Latter Prophets (the Former Prophets comprised of some books included in History in the English Bible), and Wisdom Literature. (In the Hebrew OT, Daniel comes in the wisdom rather than the prophets.)

Proverbs and Psalms are particular parts of the Wisdom literature of the Old Testament that require a particular way of reading. Proverbs are meant to be read and meditated on in small bites, and taking the book over a year enables this. The Psalms are a prayer and hymn book and again taking them as we do in this lectionary is with a view to us learning to pray and worship with them.

The New Testament readings are arranged with a view to allowing variety to help sustain the reader. (In my own Bible reading I have found it hard to read one Synoptic Gospel immediately after reading another. It seems at times that the distinctiveness and freshness of the gospels is lost when I read this way.) In this lectionary a gospel (normally) will be followed by a larger letter of Paul, another non-Pauline letter, and maybe a pastoral epistle by Paul.

For many this is the difficulty in reading parts of the Bible – what does it mean?? I am sure that regular reading of the Bible is integral to getting understanding. Scripture informs and interprets Scripture. The Holy Spirit is the teacher of God’s people, and the Holy Spirit is the One who has been at work in the writers of the Scriptures so that we may learn and grow in God’s truth through them. Becoming soaked in the Scriptures and asking the Holy Spirit to lead us into a deeper understanding of God’s truth in those Scriptures is the way to come to understanding. (Of course other studies may well help to extend this learning.) So I earnestly commend you to pray for the enlightening and teaching work of the Holy Spirit as you come to read the words of Scripture. I am sure He will open your eyes to see wonderful things in the Word of God.

I hope too that in reading the Scriptures we will give ourselves time to sit with them, meditate on them, and return them to God in prayer that has been drawn out by them. Read the Bible knowing that you have been inducted into the presence of God the Father by Jesus Christ our saving Lord and through the work of the Holy Spirit. Let your reading result in worship of our gracious God!
